TWENTY-THIRD YEAR.

PARIS, BOURBON COUNTY, KENTUCKY, TUESDAY, JUNE 28, 1904.

An Expansion and Betterment Sale Begins This Week----A Vast Mercantile Movement With a Host of Remarkable Values.

We must have more room—Our fast increasing trade demands it—So we have decided to remove our large Dress Making Department, which now occupies half the floor space on the second floor of our building, to beautiful and new quarters on the third floor. We will tear down all the fixtures on the second floor and construct a large addition to the Cloak, Suit and Upholstery Departments. The entire second floor must be turned over to the contractors in two weeks. This means that the stock contained in the Cloak Room, including Cloth Suits, Separate Skirts, Shirt Waists, Shirt Waist Suits, Infants' Dresses, Furs Draped, Curtains and Upholstery Goods of all sorts, must be moved out and that space elsewhere in the store must be encroached upon. We propose to reduce our inconvenience to a minimum by promptly closing out a large part of the stocks affected.

At Prices That Are In Many Cases Far Below Usual Wholesale Cost.

The entire second floor will be re-arranged. The departments will have bright new fixtures, and in most cases, new locations. These changes will affect some of our very largest and most important stocks, and these stocks are to be reduced in volume as much as possible in anticipation of the general re-adjustment of space and location. Beginning to-morrow therefore we will begin a great merchandise movement which, for want of a more excessive title, we shall call "an expansion and Betterment Sale." For expansion of space compels the rebuilding, and the better serving of our customers will be attended by the re-adjustment of the second floor departments. The sale will be an event of interest to every one of our customers and to the public generally. Every department will have something to offer far under value. Some of the lots perhaps will be too small to advertise. It will be well to come and look through the store every day.

Sent to Jail For Contempt.

Samuel M. Tudor, one of the prominent attorneys at the Lexington bar, was sent to jail Friday by Judge Parker for contempt of court. Mr. Tudor, in response to a summons, appeared before the grand jury that afternoon, and during his examination he was asked several questions in regard to gambling houses in the city. He refused to answer any questions on this point, and the foreman of the grand jury appealed to Judge Parker. The foreman stated to the court that he had asked Mr. Tudor whether he had seen any crap games in operation in that city, and that the attorney had refused to answer the question. Mr. Tudor stated to the court that he was the attorney for several of the alleged gambling offenders, and that whatever knowledge he might have as to the existence of gambling was gained by him in a professional way, and he did not believe that he should be required to answer the question asked by the foreman of the grand jury. Judge Parker said that he did not believe being an attorney would excuse the witness from answering questions, and he would therefore commit him to jail unless the question was answered. Attorney Tudor held out for his rights, and he was therefore taken to jail by Deputy Jailer Ahearn.

Silk Culture Experiments in the United States

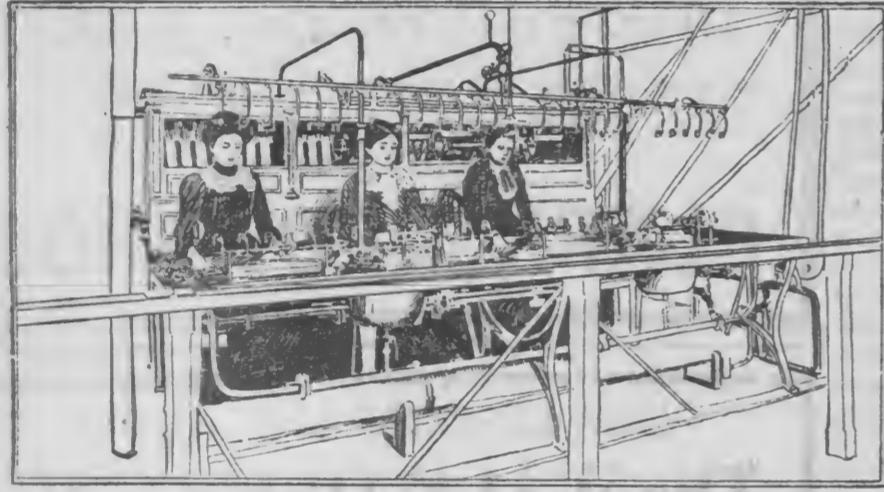

THEY HAVE BEEN TRIED WITH VARYING DEGREES OF SUCCESS SINCE COLONIAL TIMES

THE efforts that are being made by the agricultural department to stimulate interest in the silk industry in this country revives interest in the various previous efforts in this line.

Since early colonial days there have been spasmodic efforts made at establishing a silk industry in this country. As early as 1660 Mr. Aspinwall established nurseries of the mulberry at New Haven and Mansfield, Conn., and on Long Island, and imported eggs of the silkworm. These efforts were continued for more than 100 years without achieving other results than to keep the interest in the subject alive, and were finally arrested by the war of the revolution. About 1771 silk culture was attempted in both Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and was continued until the war put a stop to practically all industries, but it was partly revived after the treaty of peace with England had been signed.

A few people retained their interest in the industry during the early part of the nineteenth century, and in the late twenties a resolution was introduced into the house of representatives directing the compilation of a manual on the culture of silk. House document No. 226 of the Twentieth congress, first session (1828), is a treatise on the rearing of silkworms, by Mr. De Hazzie, of Munich, translated from the German, apparently by Mr. James Mease, of Washington, D. C. This seems to have been the first congressional action favoring silk culture.

Following the publication of the book mentioned there began a determmed effort to establish silk culture on a firm basis in the United States. It was estimated that four tons of silk cocoons were produced in 1833 in the county of Windham, Conn. Individuals in Massachusetts were said to have cultivated it with success for 30 years. This interest in silk culture soon passed beyond bounds, and there originated what is known as the Morus multicaulis craze. Anticipating a most profitable investment, if not speedy riches, thousands of individuals purchased mulberry plants of the Multicaulis species and planted large areas of valuable land. The investments far exceeded possible returns; heavy frosts destroyed the plantations of trees, and in the course of a few years the many failures and great disappointments caused so complete a revolution of feeling that not only was silk culture, practically abandoned all through the states, but the very name became a byword.

Ten years or more after the discovery of gold in California had attracted many thousands of people to that state and at a time when its extraordinary agricultural prospects were first beginning to be exploited, the silk industry began to raise its head there. Near San Jose, in 1861, a Frenchman named L. Prevost, having begun the propagation of the mulberry, succeeded in raising excellent cocoons. In the transactions of the State Agricultural society for 1864-65, Mr. Prevost published a short article on silk culture in California, in which he showed that his first plantings were made in 1853 or 1854, and that he had induced two ladies, named A. Packard and E. Goux, of Santa Barbara, to start a plantation of 3,000 trees, with the result that in 1864 they raised five pounds of silk-worm eggs. Plantations had also been made in the San Joaquin valley, and 50,000 trees had been set out near central Utah.

When, in June 1878, Prof. C. V. Riley was appointed entomologist of the United States department of agriculture, he brought with him from Missouri a strong interest in silk culture and a conviction that this industry could be established in the United States.

In 1882 trees were sent out to correspondents of the department and the report was made that among the Menonites in one of the western states mulberry trees had been planted in thick hedges at the limits of the fields and both sides of the highways and byways. The trees were cut down one-third at a time every three years, furnishing an abundant supply of fuel and also serving as windbreaks. These people had almost 20,000 pounds of cocoons on hand for sale.

In the spring of 1883 some 8,000 mulberry trees were distributed, as well as a quantity of silkworm eggs. No cocoons were bought by the department, but examinations were made of home-raised eggs. Two stations had been

HATERS OF AARON BURR.

Tradition in the Family of a Man Visitor at the Grave of Alexander Hamilton.

A guest at an uptown hotel asked the clerk the other day how to get to Hamilton's grave. When he received the information, says the New York Sun, he said he had been there several times, but thought maybe there might be some new route.

"I never come to New York without going to see Hamilton's grave," he added.

"I see; an admirer of Hamilton, eh?" returned the clerk.

"Somewhat; but principally 'cause I hate Aaron Burr. I'll tell you about it."

"We live not far from the island in the Ohio river where Aaron Burr played it low down on Blennerhasset. My grandfather worked for Blennerhasset when he was a boy, and he piloted Burr away from the island.

"When Burr parted from my grandfather he told him he would send him some money for his trouble, but he never did. My grandfather wrote to Burr about it some time after the incident, but Burr never answered him.

"When Blennerhasset was a ruined man my grandfather, then a mere lad, cursed Burr for his course. When he heard that Burr had killed Hamilton in a duel he swore that he would kill Burr if he could ever get to him. While Burr was on trial in Richmond my grandfather made a trip there for the purpose of carrying out his threat. The opportunity, however, did not present itself, and my grandfather returned home.

"When he reared his family he taught them to curse Burr's name. My father carried out his father's wish and taught his boys to execute Burr as long as they lived.

"At one time some of us boys entered into a conspiracy to steal Burr's body from Princeton and burn it. We actually came east to carry out our plan, but got scared away.

"Then I got to reading about Alexander Hamilton, and to love his name and history. Instead of trying to steal Burr's body I concluded I would honor the grave of Hamilton.

"So when I and my wife come to New York we always make it a point to go to Hamilton's grave. This year we concluded to visit it on Decoration day and lay our tribute on his grave."

This hater of Burr is one of the most highly-respected citizens in the vicinity of Marietta.

WOLVES ARE INCREASING.

Large Sums of Money Still Paid as Bounty in Western States.

The wolf is more dreaded of humanity than any other animal. No doubt we to-day inherit that dread from ancestors who had occasion to fear the long-fanged quadruped, for there are few portions of the world to-day where the wolf is really dangerous to mankind, states Field and Stream.

Dangerous to man's pocket, to his herds and flocks, he is still to-day in many portions of the country. A ranch in Montana or New Mexico may pay many hundreds of dollars a year for gray wolf scalps. Such a scalp is cheap at $12 or $15 to the rancher, for the gray robber would certainly have destroyed many times that value in valves or colts from the range. Yet in spite of all the warfare made upon them, and all the prices put upon their heads, these dreaded, mysterious, ghostlike, terror inspiring creatures still hold their own. Outcasts for ages, hated, persecuted, they still endure, each for himself, and without a friend on earth, even among his own kind.

Last year the state of Minnesota paid over $6,000 a month in the best of the wolf season. One day of the month of last March the state auditor paid $6,158.50 in wolf bounties. The total for the few months preceding was $26,548.50. On this basis the current year will foot up nearly as much as the two years preceding, which appears to indicate that Brother Wolf is holding his own, even as a matter of commerce. In many parts of the western cattle range the gray wolves are increasing, rather than decreasing.

Tourist—Can I get across the fields to Slowcombe, my dear?

Strenuous Faith.

Bill Brown — Your friend Greening seems to have a lot of faith in homeopathy, doesn't he?

Jay Jones — Never saw anything equal to it. Why, last summer when he had an attack of hay fever he actually married a grass widow.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

To His Credit.

He — So you are under the impression that I am a woman hater of the worst sort?

She — No, of the best sort. You say you never intend to marry.—Puck.

AN AMERICAN MISSING.

Kent J. Loomis Disappeared at Plymouth, Eng.

The Possibility That Some Harm May Have Befallen Him After Landing at Plymouth Is Hinted at By the Officials.

London, June 27.—The whereabouts of Kent J. Loomis, brother of the American assistant secretary of state, Francis B. Loomis, who disappeared shortly before or after the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. at Plymouth, June 20, remains in the same state of doubt as Saturday.

Officials who are investigating the case say there is no truth in the report that Loomis turned up in Paris Saturday.

Paris, June 27.—Not a word was received Sunday regarding the whereabouts of Kent J. Loomis, brother of Francis B. Loomis, American assistant secretary of state, who disappeared shortly before or after the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. at Plymouth, June 20. Although midnight Sunday marks a week since the disappearance of Mr. Loomis, the officials still cling to the belief that he will turn up when the effects of his abstraction have worn off.

The belief is due to a careful deduction from the series of circumstances related by W. J. Ellis, his companion on board the steamer, and by Gustave Flamm, of San Francisco, who was a fellow passenger. This process of deduction practically excludes the theory of foul play on board the Kaiser Wilhelm II., and also excludes the likelihood that Mr. Loomis fell overboard. It leads to the acceptance of Mr. Flamm's statement that he saw Mr. Loomis get off at Plymouth.

Accordingly, a minutely circumstantial description of Mr. Loomis has been forwarded to Joseph Stephens, American consul at Plymouth. Although thus satisfied that Mr. Loomis was not lost from the Kaiser Wilhelm II., the officials foresee the possibility that some harm may have befallen him after he landed at Plymouth. However, they consider this possibility rather remote, but, nevertheless, complete absence of clews after a week of continued efforts to find Mr. Loomis makes the case one of increasing mystery.

LIFE PRESERVERS.

Those on the Steamer General Slocum Were Practically Useless.

New York, June 24.—Much of the testimony at the inquest Thursday into the General Slocum disaster went to show that the life preservers on the steamer were practically useless. At least half a dozen witnesses described how difficult these life preservers were to get at, and how they fel, to pieces at critical times. Paul Lilienow, a passenger of the General Slocum, who has lost six members of his family in the disaster, declared that when the wires by which the preservers were secured in the rackets would not give, he took hold of the preservers and they crumbled like so many soda crackers.

Capt. Van Schalck was brought into the court room on a stretcher. He apparently was suffering greatly, but expressed a willingness to undergo an examination by the coroner. He was ordered back to the hospital, however.

Twenty-four additional bodies were recovered Thursday, bringing the total number of known dead up to 907. One hundred policemen, who have been making a canvass of all districts where persons were reported to be missing, completed their work tonight. Inspector Schmitberger, who was in charge of the canvass, estimated the total number of dead, including the missing, at about one thousand.

New York, June 27.—Crowds, with heads bowed and uncovered, lined both sides of East river as the wrecked hulk of the General Slocum was towed to a dock in Erie basin, where it is to be inspected by the federal authorities.

Yale's Commencement Week.

New Haven, Ct., June 27.—Yale's commencement week was formally opened Sunday when President Arthur T. Hadley delivered the baccalaureate address in Woolsey hall, Yale's magnificent new auditorium.

St. Louis, June 27.—A dinner was given in honor of Gov. and Mrs. B. B. Odell, Jr., of New York, by Mrs. Daniel Manning, president of the World's fair board of lady managers, Sunday night at her residence.

Monsignor Guidi Dead.

Manila, June 27.—Monsignor Guidi, apostolic delegate to the Philippines, died Sunday of heart failure. The funeral will take place here next Friday and the remains will be interred two months later at Rome.

Broke the Mile Motor-Paced Record.

New York, June 27.—J. Moran, of Chelsea, Mass., broke the mile motor-paced record, covering the distance in 1:26 2/5 in the first mile of the final heat of the five mile motor-paced bicycle race on the Manhattan Beach track.

Drowned in the Lake.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 27.—By the capsizing of his canoe Frederick J. Miller, of Truscott & Miller, grain merchants, was Sunday drowned in Park Lake while thousands were nearby listening to a band concert.

—We will have on sale Monday, July 4th, at shipping pens, in Paris, Ky., two car loads of Kansas horses—one load of heavy mares, one load of yearlings and two-year-olds.

J. F. COOK & CO.

—Hon. Leslie Combs, of Fayette, has leased to Mr. J. B. Haggins his 600-acre beautiful country place "Belle Air" on Walnut Hill Pike and the latter will use it largely as a pasturing annex to Elmdorf. Quite a number of Mr. Haggins' horses have arrived from New York and taken to "Belle Air."

—At Cleveland, O., Lou Dillon (1:58½) proved herself one of the greatest trotters living Saturday afternoon when she stepped a mile to a wagon in 2:04½ with a wind blowing close to 35 miles an hour.

She stepped the last quarter in 0:31½. She could have easily have trotted the mile in 2:00 flat had it not been for the strong breeze. Her fastest quarter was in the three-quarters, which she stepped in 0:31.

—Honors are falling thick and fast upon the popular sale firm of Tranter-Kenney Co. The firm received the following telegram Wednesday: "Nancy Hanks foaled a bay colt and its name is Tranter-Kenney." It will be recalled, that the Tranter-Kenney company conducted the closing out sales of the late Malcolm Forbes, at which Mr. Johnson bought Nancy Hanks, once queen of all trotters, for $4,000. At that time she was in foal to the famous Bingin and the colt mentioned in the above telegram is the result.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR JAILER.

We are authorized to announce Geo. W. Judy as a candidate for re-election for Jailer of Bourbon county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Geo. W. Bowen as a candidate for Jailer of Bourbon County, subject to the action of the Democratic party, with James A. Gibson as Deputy.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE.

We are authorized to announce Denis Dunton as a candidate for Judge of Bourbon county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

COUNTY ATTORNEY.

We are authorized to announce Charles A. McMillan as a candidate for County Attorney of Bourbon county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

STATE SENATOR.

We are authorized to announce Col. H. P. Thosnson as a candidate for State Senator from the 28th district composed of the counties of Bourbon, Clark and Montgomery, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

It is a good rule in warfare to find out what the enemy wishes you to do and then do it. In his nominating speech former Gov. Black said the Democrats have neither guns nor ammunition, and if they had they would use them on each other. The truth is that there are plenty of guns and a superabundance of ammunition. The only question is whether the rest of Gov. Black's statement shall be verified. That is the sole hope of the Republicans, and if the St. Louis convention will dash that to the ground, the people will do the rest.

ABOUT the most amusing thing that took place at Chicago, not excepting Uncle Jo Cannon's wiggling of his toes, was Mr. Cortelyou's formal announcement that he intended to be National Committee chairman in fact, and would accept no dictation from anyone, high or low. Cortelyou, who was raised from almost a menial's office to a Cabinet portfolio by Roosevelt, who was taken out of the Cabinet and forced on the National Committee as its chairman by Roosevelt, and who has never made a move since Roosevelt became President except at the dictation of Roosevelt—Cortelyou, in short, who is absolutely nobody except at the dictation of Roosevelt!

For a number of years the country has enjoyed a greater or less degree of prosperity for all of which the Republican party has claimed credit. It seems that the crest of the wave has been reached and that it is now receding, and if that party claims credit for the advancing prosperity, it should be willing to bear the blame of a decrease of prosperity and just now things look a little ominous. The railroad earnings are steadily decreasing, and thousands of men in their employment have been discharged. Instead of the surplus that the government weekly reports formerly showed we now have frequent deficits; mills and factories are running on short time and many have stopped altogether. Scores of places report reductions in wages and none an increase. The commercial agencies report dullness in trade and reduced demands. Gold is going abroad in increasing quantities. In fact all indications are discouraging and promise further declines. Will the Republicans assume responsibility for this state of affairs also?

SALE FIRM DISSOLVES.—The Tranter-Kenney Sale Company, one of the most pretentious organizations of its kind in the United States, with headquarters in Lexington, and branch offices elsewhere throughout the county, announced Saturday the dissolution of the company, and will pass out of existence as a company at once. The principal stockholders in the company are E. J. Tranter and Frank P. Kenney, and the dissolution of the firm is due to Tranter accepting an engagement with the Fasig-Tipton Sale Company, with headquarters in New York. The Tranter-Kenney Sale Company was incorporated in June, 1902.

SHIRTS—Ready-made sheets 60c each during our Special Sale.

Garnishee Law Changed.

Of interest to merchants is the new garnishee bill which was passed by the last Legislature and which became a law last week without the Governor's signature. The bill repeals the provision of Section 1701, Kentucky Statutes, which refers to exceptions from attachment. It reads: "Provided, That the exemption of fifty dollars shall not apply to debts contracted for food, fuel, medicine, raiment or house rent for the family." Under the old law the wages of a person, earning less than $50 a month, were not subject to attachment unless for food, raiment, fuel, etc. Now the exemption for debts of that character is the same as the exemption for any other debts. Under the present law unless a person earns more than $50 a month his wages cannot be attached for any debt.

The bloodhound followed the trail to the home of Jim Salyers, who had fled with his son, Chad Salyers, to Lee county. The action of Short while in the posse created suspicion, which resulted in his arrest.

Death of George D. Mitchell.

The sad news received here Sunday, about noon, of the death of George D. Mitchell, at the St. Joseph Hospital, Lexington. He had been at the hospital for several weeks, but never seemed to get any better, as tuberculosis of the bowels had made its deadly inroads, and his physicians could never give any hope of his recovery.

George Davis Mitchell was born in Paris 47 years ago, and you might say lived here all of his life, with the exception of a few years when he was working on daily papers in some of the larger cities of the country.

He was a well-known newspaper man, understanding thoroughly every detail about a newspaper office. He was a fluent writer and for several years was city editor of the News, not giving up his work until his health compelled him to do so. His death is mourned especially by the entire force in this office, for the associations were of the pleasantest at all times. He was conscientious, mild tempered and as honest and high minded as the day is long. We do not believe Geo. Mitchell ever during his life intentionally wounded the feelings of anyone.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. Neely and Miss Ella Mitchell, and three brothers, Henry, Wallace and C. B. Mitchell, all of whom were at his bedside when he passed away.

He was a prominent K. of P. and Elk, and for years a member of the Second Presbyterian church, and died a true Christian man. Peace to his ashes.

His funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. R. J. Neely, at 4 o'clock. Services at the grave by Elder Carey Morgan, and the order of Knights of Pythias. Pall-bearers—Dr. W. T. Brooks, Owen L. Davis, Walter Clark, Newton Mitchell, Chas. D. Webb and Swift Champ.

This was the first death of a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge, which has very large membership, for seven years. The beautiful and handsome flowers that covered the grave showed in what high esteem George Mitchell was held in this community.

Burglars Cut Off Her Hair.

Burglars are again in our midst, and seem to be pretty smooth customers. The residence of Mr. Bailey Arkle, on Second street, was entered Friday night, from the rear hall door. After ransacking the house they entered the room of Miss Ida Arkle and after chloroforming the young lady cut a most beautiful suit of hair from her head. Miss Arkle awoke from a stupor Saturday morning and was completely overcome. She was compelled to call from her window to a passer-by to notify the family down stairs as the burglars had locked her door from the outside.

The lady had suffered from a severe attack of fever several years ago and it was necessary to remove all the hair from her head, but her hair had grown to be very heavy and twenty-seven inches in length of blonde color.

The burglar also took $16.00 in cash that Miss Arkle had in her bureau drawer. The empty bottle, labeled chloroform was near the bed. The burglar evidently carried his own tools as there was not a pair of scissors up stairs and the hair was cut as if by some one who understood his business.

The people are much incensed, and if the perpetrators are caught they will and should be harshly dealt with.

The Refreshing Shower.

The rain of Sunday afternoon and night was a Godsend to the farmers of Bourbon county, and especially so to those who had large crops of hemp. There is a larger acreage of hemp in Bourbon this year than was ever known, and the crop was suffering more for want of rain than any of the other crops. However, Sunday's rain was a great help to corn, oats and grass. It was general, throughout the county.

Goes to the Philippines.

Dr. Henry J. Schwartz, of this city, has left to join Capt. Henry L. Casey who is making preparations to ship 1,200 head of horses to the Philippines for the Government. Capt. Casey's wife was Miss Hattie McIlvain, of this city.

The U. S. government has made extensive preparations for the establishment of a stock farm for the breeding of cavalry horses. The shipment of these horses will cost the United States, landed in Manila, about $40,000. The animals are all saddle-bred, excepting a few thoroughbred stallions. All are mares except six, and are to be used exclusively for breeding purposes.

Dr. Schwartz goes with them and will be assistant veterinary surgeon to Capt. Casey on the farm. They proceed at once with the stock from Sedalia, Mo., to San Francisco for embarkment.

About Twenty Candidates.

About fifty Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias from Lexington will be here this afternoon to confer the Uniform Rank degree upon twenty candidates into the A. J. Lovely Company, of this city.

The Elks' band will meet the Lexington Company at Fourteenth street, where they will leave the interurban car and march to Castle Hall over W. Ed. Tucker's dry goods store. After the work the Paris Lodge will give a banquet in honor of the visiting brothers.

Gone To Frankfort.

County Judge H. C. Smith, with his board appointed for the purpose, Ed Rice, T. W. Current and Vol Ferguson, accompanied by County Assessor Harvey Hibbler have gone to Frankfort to-day to wrestle with the State Board of Equalization in regard to raise of BourbonCo's assessment. It will be remembered that Bourbon's assessment was raised some time ago 8 percent. on lands and 5 on town lots. It is to be hoped that our board will be in good shape to meet every argument put forth and the State Board take a tumble and reduce it some at least.

Mr. Glenn Exonerated.

In our notice of the hold-up of the Paris sports at Chicago we intimated that Mr. Glenn was in the play with the bunco men, and from recent developments we find that we did not gentleman an injustice. Responsible parties here have since talked to the man who was to pull off the good thing, and he very frankly said that his horse could have won the race with ease.

but that Glenn had put so many people on to the race, even his friends at St. Louis, and that it would have been suicide for him to have attempted to win. That he owed Glenn a turning down and wired his half-brother at Chicago to take all the money, as the horse would not win—and it worked that way.

Mr. Glenn returned here from Chicago with the betting commission for the express purpose of staying in Paris until he proved beyond a doubt that he was an innocent party to the hold-up and was himself buncoed by one whom he considered his best friend. The people who put their money up are confident that Mr. Glenn acted on the square in the whole matter and is in no wise to blame for the loss of the money.

This paper does not wish to injure anyone, and at the time our article was written it looked like Glenn was the chief of the buncoits, but we are glad to state that he has been fully exonerated by the statement of the man that owned the horse that the money was bet on.

A Continual Strain.

Many men and women are constantly subjected to what they commonly term "a continual strain" because of some financial or family trouble. It wears and distresses them both mentally and physically, affecting their nerves badly and bringing on liver and kidney ailments, with the attendant evils of constipation, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, low vitality and despondency. They cannot, as a rule, get rid of this "continual strain," but they can remedy its health destroying effects by taking frequent doses of Green's August Flower. It tones up the liver, stimulates the kidneys, insures healthy bodily functions, gives vivacity and spirit to one's whole being, and eventually dispels the physical or mental distress caused by that "continual strain." Trial bottle of August Flower, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.—W. T. Brooks

Healthy Mothers.

Mothers should always keep in good bodily health. They owe it to their children. Yet it is an unusual sight to see a mother, with babe in arms, coughing violently and exhibiting all the symptoms of a consumptive tendency. And why should this dangerous condition exist, dangerous alike to mother and child, when Dr. Boesch's German Syrup would put a stop to it at once? No mother should be without this old and tried remedy in the house—for its timely use will promptly cure any lung, throat or bronchial trouble in herself or her children. The worst cough or cold can be speedily cured by German Syrup; so can hoarseness and congestion of the bronchial tubes. It makes expectoration easy, and gives instant relief and refreshing rest to the cough-racked consumptive. New trial bottles, 25c; large size, 75c. At all druggists.—W. T. Brooks

An Idyl of the Sugar Beet Fields

By BELLE MANIATES

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was certainly an infliction to Curtis Waldo, the young manager of the sugar beet factory, to be up and doing at the dawn of this summer day. He hurried to the downtown office of the factory, where a troop of noisy, happy youngsters were awaiting with impatience their drive to the fields a few miles distant, where they were to weed the beets and receive generous payment for each hour's work.

It was something of a task to take their names and get them stowed away in the big wagons in waiting, and he gave a groan of relief when the task was over. He heard the door open.

"Another!" he thought, wearily, as he raised his head from the ledger. The look of impatience vanished at the sight of the slender young figure of a girl presumably 19 years of age, who stood before him. Her face was fair and delicately pink. A big, broad-brimmed hat, rested on a head crowned by shining, reddish-brown hair, and the eyes that harmonized with such hair looked appealingly up at him.

"What can I do for you?" he asked in courteous tones.

"I want to weed beets. The driver said he'd wait while I came and got a ticket."

Waldo glanced at the dainty white hands with the well-kept nails.

"Why," he said, deprecatingly, "do you know it's hard work in a blazing hot field, stooping over and pulling up those tough weeds? Do you think you could endure it?"

"I can—if they can," she said, with a sigh, pointing to the boisterous mob without.

"What kind of work do you do?" he asked, skeptically.

"I sew. But I don't like it. I want to try out of door work."

"Well, be careful," he advised, as he went out to the wagon with her. He noted approvingly the neat, well-fitting gingham dress and, as she climbed into the wagon, he had a fleeting glimpse of a slender foot and a shapely ankle.

He watched the wagons of merry-makers drive away.

"They seem to think it's a picnic," he thought, grimly. "They'll not be so gingery when they come in tonight, I'm thinking."

All through the morning his thoughts wandered to the sweet, dream-centered face of the last applicant, Myra Cole. About 11 o'clock he said suddenly to the bookkeeper:

"I am going to drive out and see how our kindergarten is progressing."

He arrived at the fields just as the little weavers were about to begin their midday meal. They were tired, dirty and perspiring, but still happy and noisy. He found his vision of the morning with a little tot on each side of her.

"Give your luncheon all to them," he said, peremptorily. "I drove out to see how things were working, and I brought luncheon enough for both of us. Come down to the road where my horse and carriage are."

She followed him obediently.

"Shall we serve it in the carriage?" he asked.

"There is a nice shade tree across the road. We can spread it out more comfortably there."

He agreed with this suggestion and watched her unpack and arrange the luxurious luncheon he had brought.

"How did you keep your hands from burning?" he asked.

"I wore some thick gloves, and I didn't pull very many. I couldn't stand the sun. I am afraid I haven't earned much, but I will do better when I am used to it."

They sat down on the ground to the luncheon and he was pleased to see that she ate as daintily as she did other things.

"Are your parents living?" he asked.

"Yes; I live at home with them."

"And are they very poor? Pardon the question, but it doesn't seem as if you were fitted for such hard labor."

"I have to help. My mother is an invalid."

"Oh," he said, sympathetically.

"And your father? Does he work?"

"Yes; he works at the Globe Paper works."

"Have you any brothers and sisters?"

"One brother."

"Where does he work?"

"He doesn't work yet. He is a year younger than I."

"He is old enough to work. He should be the one to do this instead of you," he growled.

When they had finished luncheon he asked her to drive during the rest of the noon hour. She hesitated and looked little doubtful as to accepting.

"It'll do you good and rest you for the afternoon."

She finally consented to take a little drive, but insisted upon returning to the field at one o'clock.

"Where do you live?" he asked, as he helped her out of the carriage.

"At 415 Twelfth street," she replied, with a slight blush.

"And may I come and see you tonight, he asked.

The blush deepened.

"I am going to a dance to-night."

"A dance! Where?"

"The Draymen's union."

His idol tottered.

"With whom are you going?"

"My brother."

This was more encouraging, but still, the Draymen's union! He couldn't associate her with the entertainment. Mechanically he lifted his hat and drove abruptly and swiftly away. He was at the office when the wagon loads drove up in the evening. The children did not fulfill his prediction of losing their ginger. Their elastic natures had revived during the ride home all their hilarity of the evening.

Although Myra Cole was one of the first to enter, she stepped aside to let the others receive their payment. When the ranks finally began to thin Waldo looked up to see why she did not come to his desk. To his amazement she had vanished.

"I suppose she was in a hurry to dress for the dance," he mused, with a shudder at the thought of that refined maiden attending such a dance.

Although an employee had been drawn into the work of starting the "kindergarten" Waldo appeared at the scene of action the next morning. She was there, as sweet and dainty as he had pictured her. She came up to him at once.

"I didn't wait for my money last night," she said.

"I suppose you were impatient for the dance," he said, with a little sarcasm apparent in his voice. "You must be tired. Did you dance every time?"

"I didn't dance at all," was her astonishing reply. He had thought of her as easily being the belle of the ball.

"Why not?"

She gave an odd little laugh.

"No one asked me!" she replied, wistfully.

"No one asked you! Not even your brother?"

"My brother doesn't know how to dance. Thank you," as he handed her the envelope.

"Wait, you haven't your ticket for to-day," he said, as she turned to go.

"I am not going to the fields to-day. I have to be at home."

In an instant she had given way to the jostling, eager children and was gone from his sight. Everything went wrong with Waldo that day, and he didn't go at night to pay off the "brats," but sent the cashier. In the evening he found himself on Twelfth street. He didn't plan to call—only to walk past No. 415. This, however, he was unable to do, as there was no such number. She was utterly lost to him unless she came to weed again.

The next morning was Sunday and when he picked up the Times he was interested and amused to read a bright, snappy article headed "A Day With the Beetweeder."

There was a brief allusion to the manager's kindness and patience towards his little employees. He wondered how the Times got such accurate information and was so correct as to details.

"I have it," he cried, triumphantly.

"Myra Cole was the reporter incognito. I might have known she was not what she pretended, a working girl."

He was in a peaceful, happy frame of mind all day and early Monday morning he sought the editorial offices of the Times.

"Hello, Lorimer," he said to the city editor. "I want to see the reporter who gave us such a good write-up yesterday."

"Certainly. Miss Hayden wrote the article. Come this way."

Waldo followed into a little office where a young woman sat at a desk.

"Miss Hayden, let me present Mr. Waldo, manager of the sugar beet factory."

The young woman turned and Waldo experienced a shock of disappointment upon beholding a black-haired girl who wore spectacles.

"Your article in yesterday's paper was good, so good," he said, recovering his composure, "that I am curious to know from whom you got the facts."

"From one of the weeder—a very intelligent young girl."

"Was her name Myra Cole?" he asked, eagerly.

"Let me think," she mused. "I believe that was the name she gave me, although I am not sure."

"Do you know where I can find her?"

"No, I do not."

Baffled, Waldo left the office. Then it occurred to him that her father worked at the Globe Paper company. Happy thought! He hastened to the office and asked for the manager, whom he knew slightly.

"Good morning, Mr. Grant. I want to speak to one of your employees, if I may."

"Certainly, Mr. Waldo. Which one?"

"His name is Cole."

A search through pay rolls failed to reveal an employee by this name. As he was about to take his leave a door behind him opened and a voice he instantly recognized said:

"Good morning, papa!"

Quickly he turned and beheld Myra Cole, whom Grant introduced as his daughter! Her eyes danced mischievously.

"So it was you who gave the facts to the Times?"

She laughed happily.

"Yes; Laura Hayden is a friend of mine and I did it to accommodate her and she wanted to go to a concert that night, so I did the Draymen's union for her, too."

"Will you tell me," he asked, gazing earnestly into her sparkling eyes, "why you did not reveal your identity to me?"

"Oh—because—" she replied.

Her father laughed.

"That is a favorite reason with my daughter. You will never get a more satisfactory answer than that from her!"

No Real Grievance.

"Say," complained the customer, "I want to put in a kick. Remember that ton of coal I got here yesterday?"

"Yes, sir," said the dealer. "What's the matter with it?"

"You sold it to me as your best smokeless. I find it has a lot of broken stone in it."

"Well, stone doesn't smoke, does it? What are you kicking about?"—Chicago Tribune.

To Get the Real Thing.

"I tell you, automobiling is exciting."

"Think so?"

"I know it."

"Well, if you want real excitement, you want to give up your automobile and take to driving on roads where automobiles are thick. You don't begin to get all there is coming in the excitement line."—Chicago Post.

Then He Hurried Home.

"I say, Miss Nellie," remarked young Borem, as the clock chimed the hour of 11, "I have a conundrum for you."

"Well," she queried, as she attempted to suppress a yawn, "what is it?"

"What is the difference between me and a five-dollar gold piece?" he asked.

"One can easily lose a five-dollar gold piece," she replied.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BODY AN ART GALLERY.

Filipino's Tattooed Cuticle Proves Incriminating Evidence Against Him and Causes His Arrest.

A man was taken to constabulary headquarters in Manila the other day whose body was an art gallery. His breast, back and arms had been rendered completely unattractive by tattooing, workers under the skilful guidance of antinganting priests. He was visiting his querida in Manila when arrested.

He was not an unpossessing native, but he had too many incriminating documents worked into his cuticle to be allowed to roam around in a wild state, so he was arrested as a suspicious character. He gave his name as Sylvester Gomez. His antingantings were above suspicion, as well as above price, and had they been worn on a garment, as is customary, he would have been despoiled of it for a curio.

Over his heart he had worked a conventional figure of an altar, with a cross superimposed. This he said was an antinganting. On his right breast was a human heart, inverted, surmounted by a cross, with three letters above it. When asked what particular brand of antinganting this was he only grinned the wider. It is believed that this fantastic design is the reminder of some vow he took during the insurrection. Three more letters and a cross were tattooed in the hollow of his back. He said that these were never known to fail to keep off diseases, and, indeed, it must be confessed that he seemed to be an extraordinary healthy animal.

Then there were long disarrangements of the alphabet across his breast and all down his arms. They looked as if somebody had attempted to write a lot of seditious newspaper headlines in Tagalog and had run short of copy paper, and so had used Gomez for a writing tablet. He explained that these would keep off bullets, and they looked as if they would.

HER BONES BREAKING UP.

Peculiar Experience of an Aged Woman at Fostoria, O.—Many Pieces Are Taken Out.

Mrs. Martha Daniel, an aged lady of Fostoria, O., had the misfortune to fall against an ice chest and fracture the second and third ribs on the left side 14 months ago. The break soon healed up and she appeared to be as well as usual. In December Mrs. Daniel felt a pain in her left shoulder and feeling up found blood trickling down, and, at the same time, felt something sharp pushing through the flesh. On pulling it out she found it to be a splinter of bone. A day or so later another piece came out, and a physician was then summoned. Since then the extracting of pieces of bone has been of almost daily occurrence, and some days many pieces are taken out. There have been between 200 and 300 pieces taken out since Christmas. The bones work through the skin at both shoulders.

Kentucky at the World's Fair.

The famous studs, herds and flocks of the Blue Grass State will be most creditably represented at the Universal Exposition at St. Louis.

Governor David R. Francis, the President of the World's Fair, was born in Kentucky and has a great pride in the people, live stock, civilization and industries of his native State.

The best specimens of every breed for which Kentucky is so justly famous will doubtless be exhibited at the Universal Exposition.

Mr. J. B. Bowles, of Bardstown, Ky., the Commissioner in charge of the Kentucky live stock exhibit at the World's Fair, is making an active and successful canvass for exhibits and no one interested in the exhibit at St. Louis from the Blue Grass State will be disappointed in the extent or quality of our display.

The following letter will soon be sent by Mr. Bowles to prospective exhibitors in the State.

"To the Live Stock Breeders of Kentucky:

The undersigned having been selected as the member of the Kentucky Commission to take charge of the State Live Stock Exhibits at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition of 1904, desires to aid and encourage the stockmen of the state to prepare and present a show of pure-bred live stock which shall creditably represent the famous live stock interests of this resourceful state.

A marked interest is manifest among breeders of Kentucky to make the exhibit in the Live Stock Department of the World's Fair this fall in keeping with the commanding excellence of the live stock for which the Blue Grass State has so long been noted.

The Kentucky Commission has adopted a resolution limiting the classification of live stock which may participate in the duplication of premiums to the amount of $7,500 appropriated by the Commission to horses, mules, pack stock, cattle, sheep, Angora goats and hogs. The resolution further provides that these duplicate premiums are to be confined to stock owned in Kentucky at the time of entry, and that to participate in the distribution of this $7,500 appropriation duplicate entries of horses, mules and pack stock must be sent prior to August 1, and entries of cattle, sheep, goats and hogs prior to August 21, 1904, to the undersigned.

You will confer a favor upon the Kentucky State Commission to the World's Fair by sending the undersigned the name of any prospective exhibitors.

The cash prizes offered for the exhibits of live stock at the World's Fair are liberal in the extreme, the classification is complete, and the honors incident to securing the awards will be of the greatest value to the successful competitors.

The State of Kentucky will be greatly benefited by a large showing from its very superior flocks and herds at this Universal Exposition.

Years very truly,

(Signed) J. B. Bowles,
Commissioner in charge of Live Stock.

Kentucky Chautauqua.

In a few days the annual Chautauqua feast will be opened at beautiful Woodland Park, Lexington. Everything is now being put in readiness.

The trees were never greener; the shade, never more grateful. Soon the white tents in great numbers will be pitched about the beautiful grounds. The great auditorium will be decorated, and everything will be in readiness for the opening of the session.

Multitudes of earnest people look forward with great anticipation for the coming of the Chautauqua. It means so much to the social and intellectual life of the State. For 18 years they have been listening with interest to the great lecturers of the American platform, and have enjoyed the rare music and rich entertainments which have been provided. The expense of these entertainments to those who purchase season tickets is trivial in the extreme—bringing such entertainments as ordinarily cost from 50 cents to $1 to those who have season tickets at 10 cents.

Now that the Chautauqua no longer owns its own grounds, and is thrown upon its own resources, the lovers of the enterprise should manifest their interest in it by purchasing this year a season ticket. More than a thousand such tickets should be sold to the good people before the gates are thrown open and the Chautauqua commences.

The rich program justifies the expectation that this will be one of the best sessions of the Assembly.

The days from June 28th to July 8th will be filled with rare pleasure and enjoyment. In this crucial year, when the outcome will decide the future, as far as the Kentucky Chautauqua is concerned, the people of Kentucky should give the enterprise their heartiest co-operation.

Splendid work for the children has also been provided, with Women's Conferences of interest under the control of the Woman's Council, and Biblical work under that prince of leaders, Dr. M. M. Parkhurst.

A Noted Kentucky Boy.

The following was taken from The West Australian of Jan. 4th, 1904, regarding George Smith, a Kentucky violinist, and his friends here will be gratified at his success. It goes on to say: "George Smith, an American violinist, appeared at the Theater Royal last evening with his company to a packed house. Mr. Smith is one of the greatest virtuosos of the age; his tone is simply marvelous, while his bowing either in popular or classical music is incomparable. The effect he produced cannot be described in words; he must be heard for one to have the slightest conception of its power and beauty. It is entralling and entrancing. These gifted artist will be here a short season only."
